

Rod Planck Photography Seminar

Rod Planck is only doing one photography seminar this year and the St. Johns Camera Club has the privilege to host it on Sunday, October 22, 2006 at the Holiday Inn West Conference Center in Lansing, Michigan.

Rod has been involved in the nature photography industry for over 30 years. His images have appeared in magazines such as Audubon, Sierra, Natural History, Outdoor Photographer, Backpacker, Birder's World, National and International Wildlife, and Roger Rick as well as numerous calendars, textbooks, and much more.

He is as enthusiastic about teaching others about nature photography as he is about being in the field photographing. Rod has led and conducted hundreds of nature photography tours, workshops and one-day seminars throughout North America and as far away as Antarctica. He will have information applicable for both digital and film cameras, but not a class on Photoshop (not nearly enough time).

This will be a one-day intensive instructional photographic seminar. Included in the seminar registration fee will be a Continental breakfast, seminar handouts, and more. Morning session will be from 9:00 a.m. – 12:00 p.m. with lunch (on your own) between 12:00 p.m. – 1:30 p.m. and the afternoon session from 1:30 p.m. – 5:30 p.m.

The seminar will provide all the information you'll need from the moment you find a subject that inspires you to the creation of an image that is properly exposed, razor sharp (where and when it needs to be) and dynamically composed with strong visual integrity. Rod teaches field techniques that work for both film and digital photography. Regardless of your skill level or imaging format this seminar will help you take your photography to a higher level.

Registration fee is $85.00 payable to The St. Johns Camera Club, Attn: Janet Tiedt, Treasurer, P.O. Box 44, Fowler, MI 48835-0044. For more information contact Bob Sheap at (517)699-5114. Early registration is recommended as space is limited.
